

If I as account holder already have a savings account with the bank, I declare:

- that I have requested the bank, on my own initiative, to open more than one savings account in my name or in the name of the person I represent legally and
- that I have been informed by the bank that no withholding tax will be deducted from the interest received on the said savings account up to the statutory maximum amount and that the undersigned is therefore obliged to declare for income tax purposes only the portion of the total interest (including that of underage children from which the Bank has not deducted any withholding tax) that exceeds the statutory maximum amount.
